CONFERENCE.

Interesting Items From Somerset County's Hustling Town.

Confidence, July 27.—Dick Hyatt, son of Allen Hyatt, while riding on his bicycle yesterday, got a fall and broke his left arm. Dr. Kuhlman of Ursina was called in and set the broken limb.

Harry Stairs, a farmer of Lower Turkeyfoot township, was a caller in Confidence today.

B. F. Sloan, our stone and tile drummer, is circulating in Johnstown today calling on his old customers.

Rev. Vannerman, who has been clerking in T. B. Dean's store, is off on a vacation.

A. McNair of Henry Clay township came to town to have eye heard taken out of his eye today. Dr. Bowman did the work. He also says Mrs. McNair, who has been ill, is some better.

Fred Yeagley caught the largest bass last night out of the Casselman river that has been caught for several years. T. A. Groff and Uncle Jake Steiner, our champion anglers up to date, after hearing the story verified, are so nervous that they are unable to fish today, and J. C. Newcomer, our jeweler, cannot do anything in the watch repairing line today and told his customers to come tomorrow.

The attraction at the ball park tomorrow afternoon will be the game between the Dunbar and Confidence teams. As this will be the first game of any importance held at the park this season the management are putting the park in the very best possible condition and when the time comes to play ball it will be found that the diamond has been scraped and rolled thus enabling the players to demonstrate their ability as ball players without and danger. The admission will be 25 cents and the game will be called at 2 P. M. In order that the home team may equip themselves with the necessary material that they may need this summer they have leased the Conigouner & Younkin steam riding gallery for Thursday and Friday nights. This will be the first time that the patrons of our national game will have a chance to how what they can do towards the support of the home team. The patronage of all the people is all that is asked by the ball team for they will be amply repaid before the present season is over.

J. E. Bowlin, F. E. Bowlin, William Wagoner, Samuel Robbs and Charles B. Humbert of Monessen are spending a week's vacation with relatives in Confidence and vicinity.

Samuel Robinson of Marble Hill was a caller in town today.

John O. Huff and John Murphy, who are operating the Kregar coal bank near Drakestown, report plenty of coal out ready for the market at four cents per bushel.

John Warrick, near Bidwell, was fooling with an old mule yesterday. It was rusty and he was experimenting with it when it went off and he received a very dangerous wound under the jaw which may prove fatal.

Dr. Bowman dressed the wound and said it might be a very serious injury.

Everybody, who enjoys a champion game of base ball, should be present on the diamond.

Howard Sumner and wife are visiting Mrs. Sumner's father and will return home tomorrow.

Peter Bowman, who is drilling a well on John Hanes' farm about three miles from Confidence, was in town today.

There is not much doing outside of the trade, as the ordinary repairs and additional improvements are nearly completed, except the new residences, which are under headway.

The stone crusher is in operation at the Drakestown reservoir.

Rev. Bryson and J. F. Black, who have been visiting O. G. Black's, returned home to Dawson last evening.

Rev. J. C. Brown, pastor of the M. E. Church, is expected this evening. He will preach here Sunday morning and evening.

C. H. Flinn, D. D., has returned to his work in Pittsburgh.

Bargains in all departments at Black's department store.

The C. A. C. third nine, noticed in an issue of The Courier about how easy it is to be a state star. The manager wishes to be state star. The C. A. C. third played the O. P. A. C's. not the B. B. S., and can prove by the score card that they, the C. A. C's, got the most hits and the least errors. Ohio's is not in their class and for proof, Confidence will play the O. P. A. C's any day this week. For game write to John K. Bagges.

H. B. Tisue says he will be on the street in a few days, as it is so long this nice weather.

M. Ray Thomas is the carrier of The Courier at Somerset and Thomastown.

OHIO-PYLE.

Notes from the Little Mountain Resort Up the Yough.

Ohio-Pyle, July 25.—The Bon Hur lecture and stereopticon entertainment given in the Ranier park pavilion Tuesday night by Rev. George Flinn, was fine beyond a doubt. Rev. Flinn gives such a fine explanation of each picture that they seem to be in life instead of on a screen. The pictures are beautiful and artistically colored and are life size, making them present an elegant appearance. Quite a large number of people were present and all were well pleased, and it is our sincere hope to have Rev. Flinn with us again in the future.

O. K. McKee, the pop man from Confidence, was transacting business in our burg yesterday.

Mrs. James Moon and sister Miss Estella DeHaas, were Connellville shoppers yesterday.

The Colored Jubilee Singers in charge of Rev. J. W. E. Nash are now with us having arrived in our metropolis Tuesday evening. The campmeeting will be held in the Farnell grove from now until August 8. Admission 5 and 10 cents, the receipts to go to the Second Baptist Church of Morgantown, W. Va. Come all.

Miss Daine Hornbeck and Miss Nettie Gillespie of East Liberty, who have been spending the past week as the guests of Mrs. B. A. Smith, returned to their homes last evening on train No. 49.

C. W. Sailor was out of town on business yesterday.

Thomas McFarland was a Connellville business caller yesterday. He returned on train No. 16 last evening.

Miss Mabel Ritenour, who has been spending the past week with relatives in McKeesport, returned home on train No. 16 last evening.

Charles Brady, who has been at Baltimore, Md., for the past few days transacting business, returned home yesterday.

Miss Margaret Tannenhill of Mill Run is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. A. J. Colborn, at this place.

William Gletty was on the sick list Tuesday.

NOT A PATENT MEDICINE.

Hymel, the Guaranteed Catarrh Cure, Prescribed by Physicians.

No one should endure Hymel with patient medicines, that are advertised to cure catarrh. It is as far superior to them all as the diamond is more valuable than cheap glass. Their composition is secret, but Hymel gives its formula to all reputable physicians.

Its base is the valuable emulsiplum, famous for its anti-putrid qualities. This is combined with aromatic and healing gums and balsams, making a pure liquid which, when used in the Hymel pocket inhaler, fills the air you breathe with germ-killing, disease-destrorying and healing powers that restore health to every part of the throat, nose and lungs.

It is not foolish to try and cure catarrh by swallowing tablets or liquids? The only natural way to cure this disease and all other diseases of the respiratory organs is to breathe Hymel.

This treatment has been so successful, curing 99 per cent. of all who have used it, that Hymel is now sold by A. A. Clarke under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure. You run no risk whatever in trying Hymel. If it did not possess unusual powers to cure, it could not be sold upon this plan.

The complete Hymel outfit costs $1.00 and comprises a hard rubber inhaler, a bottle of Hymel, and a dropper. The inhaler will last a lifetime, and additional bottles of Hymel can be obtained for 50c.

Prevents Hay Fever. All who are subject to hay fever or colds should use Hymel daily for two or three weeks before the time of their annual attack and so prevent it. The worst cases are quickly relieved and cured by Hymel and Hymel Balm.

DOUGLAS COLLEGE NEWS.

Getting Ready for Life.

Abraham Lincoln said: "I will study and get ready; maybe my time will come." His time came, just as it comes to everyone that makes the preparation. The best way to "get ready" is to secure a business education. It has been the open door of success to thousands. Throughout life it helps a man from one position to a better one.

Miss Johnson was employed during the day, but attended our night school and now holds a good position. Here is her letter to Prof. Douglas.

"The Douglas Business College is the school to attend if one wants a first-class business education. I know from experience, for I took my course there. I entered the Night School, being employed during the day, and was fitted in one year to hold my present position. The course was thorough and satisfactory. To those seeking a preparation for business there is no better school to attend."

School will reopen August 29, 1904. Students are now enrolling. There will be a large attendance of bright, enthusiastic students. Our new catalogue is just out. Write for it today, tomorrow you may forget it.

HARVEST TIME IN MILLINERY.

The Last Few Days of July Are to Be Made Notable by a Multitude of Remarkable MILLINERY OFFERINGS.

You probably know how jealous we are of the freshness and rightness of our Millinery. When lines are to be changed we hurry them out promptly while they are still useful to those who may buy them. In following up this policy a large and varied collection of Trimmed and Untrimmed Hats, many of which you would probably buy at regular prices if this chance did not come, together with others that, while you might not want them at their regular prices, you will be glad to secure them at the little prices that are asked today.

Few Women Will Want to Fail to Have a Look Over the Collection, at Least.

Trimmed Hats.

We have exactly 23 Ladies' Trimmed Hats, ranging in price from $3.00 to $11.00. We have divided them into three small groups:

One Lot at $1.48 One Lot at $2.48 One Lot at $3.48

These three lots include all of our higher grade hats now remaining.

Other Trimmed Hats Include
FIVE CHIFFON BRIM HATS, with Braid Crowns, value $1.25, will go at 48c
TWO CHIFFON and HORSEHAIR HATS valued at $2.50, to close at 98c

A Collection of 14 Trimmed Hats
In a very pretty assortment of shapes, trimmed with flowers and ribbon, formerly priced from $2.25 to $5.00, clearance price 98c

Street Hats.

Hats of this description are always in demand, and we have so few of them it would be an easy matter to sell them at their regular prices, but as this is our final clearance sale of Millinery, we will not reserve a hat. Every one of them will be offered you at the lowest prices you have ever paid.

We Have Grouped These Under Two Prices:

One group of five Braid Trimmed Hats, $2.75 value, Clearance price, 59c

A little group of three pretty Hats, worth $4.25, $5.00 and $5.50, your choice at $1.39

Untrimmed Hats.

One Lot of 30 Hats

In a variety of shades, in values up to $1.00 will be closed out at 19c

Another Lot of 7 Hats

Any one of them worth $1.50, will be sold at 29c

A Third Group of 4 Hats

Any one of them very desirable, and all of them $2.00 value. Your choice at 39c

These three prices cover every untrimmed hat we have in stock.

Children's Hats.

14 Milan Sailors

48c each.

This collection includes white, light mixtures, and plain dark colors, and formerly sold at $1.50.

We also have a couple of

Black Milans

Which were $2.00, but now priced 98c.

We will place all the remaining braids we have on a table and will sell them at 3c per yard.

Some of these are worth 20c.

FROM NEARBY TOWNS.

VANDERBILT.

Personal Chat From Dunbar Township's Big Village.

Vanderbilt, July 28.—Rev. J. N. Menden, pastor of the Methodist Protestant Church, was in Connellsville on Monday last calling on friends.

Jacob Harshman, deputy constable of Dunbar township, and residing here, was in New Haven Monday on legal business.

Mrs. Burt Newmyer went to Connellsville Monday and spent a few hours shopping and calling on friends. Read The Daily Courier for all the late and most up-to-date news of the day. Only one cent a copy, or 25 cents a month, delivered to your home.

Read Supervisor George M. Strickler was in Connellsville Monday attending to matters of business.

Mr. Henderson is here the guest of his son, Joseph B. Henderson, superintendent of the Paul works.

M. J. Levy of Pittsburgh was in Vanderbit Tuesday on a mission of business.

Read The Daily Courier.

C. Felty, one of the well known business men of Connellsville, was here this afternoon looking after the interest of the Connellsville Grocery Company.

Next Sunday evening Collin's cornet band will run a trolley excursion to Dunbar. Those who can should attend and help the band boys along.

Leave your items of interest at the postoffice, Lock Box 1833, and they will be given consideration.

Collins Cornet band will run an excursion to the New Allegheny park on Saturday, August 6. A year ago the same band gave an excursion to New Castle Junction, which proved successful in every particular. As many as can should go from this place and thus encourage the boys with your presence. Round trip tickets from Dickerson Run will be, for adults, $1; children 50 cents.

Read The Daily Courier for home as well as news from other parts of the country. Only 25 cents a month, delivered to your home.

C. C. Moody was in New Haven Tuesday last attending to matters of business.

There is one candidate for the superintendency of the Fayette county schools who is worthy of the exalted position to which he aspires. That gentleman is Prof. R. K. Smith, principal of the Vanderbit school. He served as principal last winter and gave entire satisfaction. As a result of his efficient skill in managing our school as a learned scholar, he has been chosen for another term. The school directors would do well to vote for him.

Miss Lida Bosley of New Haven was shopping and calling on friends in Vanderbit Wednesday.

H. R. Barney, an optician of Pittsburgh, was in Vanderbit Wednesday looking after his business interests.

Florida and the Truck Lands.

The Manatee section of the West Coast of Florida, below the frost line, presents golden opportunities for the trucker and fruit grower. Descriptive pamphlets mailed free. Lawrence Miner of Richhill visited his sister, Mrs. E. J. Ulery, Sunday.

Mrs. Haasey, the aged wife of Anthony Haasey, died on Monday night of dropsy at the home of her son, Levi Haasey, of the West Side. Funeral services were held at the home Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock by Rev. H. S. Myers. Interment at a later hour in the Menonite cemetery.

Preaching services in the Mt. Olive United Brethren Church on next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.

TROLLEY CONSTRUCTION.

John R. Byrne Almost Ready to Begin at Brownsville.

J. R. Byrne of Everson, the representative of the Brownsville, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh capitalists who are undertaking the construction of the trolley line from the Fayette capital to Brownsville, has nearly completed arrangements for the beginning of the work at the Brownsville end. In Brownsville the line will be laid on Market street, but it has not been definitely decided where the line will be built in Bridgeport. The line between Brownsville and Uniontown will be the first constructed, although surveys are now being made for the line toward Washington from West Brownsville and also from California.

Mr. Byrne will have direct supervision of the construction work. The location of the power house has not yet been decided upon. This is a somewhat difficult problem, as there are serious natural difficulties to be overcome before its location can be finally chosen.

DAWSON.

Live Notes From the Busy Little Town Down the Yough.

Dawson, July 28.—The funeral of Mrs. J. H. Wurtz took place Wednesday morning from the Sacred Heart Church at 9 A. M., of which she was a member. The floral tributes were elaborate and beautiful, being sent by friends of the family. The funeral was one of the largest in the history of our town. After the services which were conducted by Pastor Gebbie, interment was made at Cochran cemetery. Funeral Director Stader of Connellsville had charge of the funeral. Mr. Wurtz was one of our most prominent business men and is known all over the state and Mrs. Wurtz with her wide acquaintance and many friends brought people here from all over the state. The business places of town were closed till noon out of respect for Mrs. Wurtz and the family.

A building is being erected at the end of the car line at Dickerson Run which will be occupied as a restaurant and confectionery. It will make it very convenient for passengers who are compelled to wait for cars when the winter weather comes.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Shively have arrived home from St. Louis where they spent ten days and the night at the fair.

Large crowds from here leave town every evening to attend the carnival at Connellsville and all pronounce it as being good.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Trobridge, after a week's visit to Mt. Pleasant at the home of Mr. Trobridge's parents, have returned here for a week's visit with Mrs. Trobridge's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Bash, Railroad street.

Misses Anna and Mary Penington of Carmichael are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. T. Arlison this week.

Fine Tailoring

Who Is Your Tailor?

No matter how fine and perfect ready-to-wear Clothing may be, there are men who will be satisfied with nothing else than made-to-measure clothes.

We Are Ready for Them.

Our first showing of the new Fall Woolens is here. We're satisfied it's a good line, but we would like to have your opinion of it.

We Want to be Your Tailor.

We believe the best way to secure your good will and your patronage is to give you the fabric you want, make it up in the way you want it made, and charge you no more than you ought to pay.

Our Tailoring Department is organized for this very purpose.

Our hobby is to please you--satisfy you--and become your permanent tailor.

We travel the middle-price path, asking enough to insure quality and to command the services of the most skillful workmen.

A trial of our tailoring will tell the whole story.

CHAPTER XXVI.

IT was the first of May, and the annual reunion of the Confederate veterans was being held in Atlanta. It was the gala week of the year. Every town and city in the south sent its official representatives and its maids of honor. The hotels were crowded and the streets thronged with an incongruous multitude wearing badges of ribbon. Southern generals and their wives and daughters were holding high reception. Everybody was welcome; hands were extended to people from the north as well as from the south. Shouts filled the air when the carriage of an ex-Confederate officer passed through the streets. The bands played "Dixie." Men, scared and melted, stood on the street corners and in the bars and hotels and told war stories and sang the praises of Robert E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson. All was mirth and good feeling. From the public buildings, the clubs, hotels and carriages floated the American flag. It hung everywhere, but it was never applauded and yet never blessed. It was beautiful to look upon and stood for peace, patriotism and prosperity. The southerners would have admitted this, and yet there was another beauty dearer to their weary memory—a beauty for which they had fought grimly and lost.

Mrs. Cranston, Lydia and Kitty Cosby were visiting the Dunleighs, a Virginia family who lived in one of the best houses in Peachtree street. George Buckley was in the city, but he had gone only to attend to the work of inspecting the books of a broker who handled considerable grain and cotton for the Darley house.

The broker, Mr. Harry Stone, was a young man of high social standing in Atlanta, and he had formed a close friendship for George. He extended the hospitality of the best club in the place to him and offered to introduce him to his friends, but George refrained from accepting. He was too true a man to feel at ease in general society so early after his father's disgrace, and Stone understood this and did not press these things upon him.

"I see you've got some stunning girls up your way," Stone remarked as George sat at a desk in the corner of the room "checking up" the books. "It's reported down here that our governor runs up that way every chance he gets."

"Yes, they are all right," Buckley answered briefly. "Such a Miss Cranston, I understand," ran on Stone. "I've heard my grandmother speak about the family in Virginia. She's visiting the Dunleighs, and I guess I'll meet her while she's here. You know her, of course?"

"Yes, we are friends," George said simply. "I've never seen her," said the broker, "but judging from her picture, she must be good looking. However, one can't tell about that. The pictures in the newspapers are always bad."

"In the newspapers?" said George, in surprise.

"Why, yes; it's in both the papers today, along with an account of the reception the governor is giving to her and her party at the mansion tonight. It's to be awfully swell. I don't go, in fact, he and I don't get on. The truth is I belong to a little club of young Americans that tried to snub him under in the last election, but we got left. He had too big a pull with the ring. He used to be civil to me, but he snarls like a possum when we meet now. He can't forget an injury. Did you ever see him?"

"Oh, yes," said George. "He's been up our way often."

"Oh, of course; I'd forgotten. They say he's not been having exactly smooth sailing up at Darley either, but it looks a little like he's making more headway now."

"How is that?" asked Buckley, his blood running cold, his heart sinking.

"Why, the reception, you know. That looks a little like she's giving in, don't you think? But I may be dead wrong. She may want to make that friend of hers, that Miss Cosby, have a good time, and the general run of girls would consider it showy madness to have a chance like that. Why, it's to be the chief event of the reunion. Well, he's welcome to his glory; it won't last long; he will never get in again."

"You think not?" said George tensely.

"No; he'll never be able to pay the expense of another campaign. He'll end what little law practice he has when he went into politics, and now he's a bankrupt."

"A bankrupt?" George exclaimed. "Why, I thought he had unlimited means."

"In a pig's valise," laughed Stone. "I am intimate with the cashier of a certain bank in this town and I let it straight that Telfair's got up the last bit of collateral he can raise for money he can't repay. Why, he had to beg the bank for a little raise to give this reception. Do you know, I suspected he was trying to marry for money. May I ask if this Miss Cranston is an heiress?"

"She's an only child," said Buckley, reluctant to continue the conversation further, "and her father is fairly well off."

"Perhaps," said Stone, "she's really daft about her."

"That must be it," George replied, and he closed the conversation by going to work.

By nightfall his task was finished, and he could have caught a train for Darley, but he felt a strange, half morbid disinclination to leave. He repaired to his hotel, changed his clothing and went down to the crowded dining room, but the very anxiety on every hand irritated him. He had no appetite for what was before him. All around him, at private tables, were parties of young people in evening dress. The music of a fine orchestra came from the rotunda. The air was filled with the perfume of flowers. Never had the burden of his birth felt so heavy, never had he so keenly longed for the unattainable. He was in the lowest degree of despair; he had begun to pity himself. Everybody else was having a holiday; no holiday could come to him while his own father was bearing the scourge of the law, while the only things he craved were eluding his grasp.

A little warmth came to his cold heart over the thought that Lydia Cranston cared for him, but it was swept away by the icy force that despite her regard for him, she was even then striving philosophically to put him out of her life. That striving had begun with the acceptance of the reception in her honor. The next step would be the formal announcement of her engagement to the governor, and then she would begin to look upon Telfair as her future husband. George sighed a groan and rose and left the room. The thought was like the pangs of death. He went out into the streets and walked on and on, going he cared not whither, trying to kill the despair within him. Dark thoughts pursued him, but he threw them aside. He was a soldier fighting black adversity, and he would fight—fight to the end. He had been walking half an hour when he came to the spacious grounds of the Dunleigh home. A carriage stood at the door. It was waiting for her—her! In a short while she would emerge dressed for the reception. Could he not wait there on the street and see her? No, for it was a closed carriage, and she would be shut off from his view. But could he not, without being seen, get nearer the door through which she would have to pass? The grounds were unlighted, and there were many clusters and hedges of shrubbery. The gate of the drive was open. He stole in and found a rustic seat behind a hedge of rosebushes, where he could remain unseen. He had not long to wait. Mrs. Dunleigh and Mrs. Cranston came out and then Miss Cosby and Lydia. The two girls paused for a moment under the great swinging lamp that hung from the ceiling of the veranda. Buckley held his breath as he looked upon her. He had never seen her in complete evening dress before, and her rare beauty was a revelation to him. She seemed to be at once the girl he knew and adored and yet another who was quite a stranger to him.

The coachman was holding the carriage door open for her, and she swept down the steps and the door closed upon her. The hoofs of the mottled drive as they whirled away. George from his sight into that of his despised rival. Buckley sank back on to the bench and clasped his cold hands. He remained there an hour and then slowly retraced his steps down the beautiful street. Soon the illumination at the executive mansion rose before him. The hum of many voices fell on his ear, blended with martial music. The trees on the lawn were hung with Chinese lanterns; from balconies overhead attendants were setting off costly fireworks. On the very sky Telfair seemed to be recording his triumph over his conquered foe. George walked on past the mansion into the reveling mass of humanity that swarmed about the principal hotels.

CHAPTER XXVII. BUCKLEY hardly knew where he went, but soon found himself again near the executive mansion. The excitement was at its height. Afraid of meeting some one who would recognize him, he walked on rapidly. He wanted to be in motion. It was the only thing that seemed to deaden the agony in his breast. One moment he would clutch his hands and stifle a groan of pain as he thought of Lydia's social triumph and her nearness to the man he despised and yet dreaded, and he would pause and look up at the sky as if trying to read there a reason for his misery. He was again passing the Dunleigh house and was about to retrace his steps to his hotel when he heard the sound of an approaching carriage. He believed it to be the Dunleighs and darted into the grounds and back to his former hiding place. He was right.

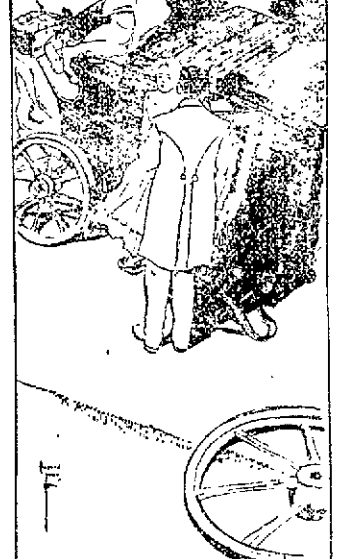

The approaching vehicle turned in at the gate and was rapidly curving toward the veranda when George noticed that one of the rear wheels was coming off. His heart was in his mouth. He wanted to give the driver warning, but it was too late. The wheel was off. The carriage lurched to one side. There was a chorus of muffled screams from within, and to make matters worse, the horses took fright and began to rear and plunge. With no thought as to the incongruity of his presence there at such a moment, Buckley darted from his place of concealment and ran to the aid of the ladies, who were loudly calling for help and trying to break the heavy plate glass windows. Buckley followed the jolting carriage along the drive and finally succeeded in jerking the door open just as the coachman drew his horses to a stand in the light at the steps. George helped the ladies out.

"Why, it's Mr. Buckley!" exclaimed Mrs. Cranston, in grateful astonishment. Buckley was a most awkward moment. Buckley could only bow, his hat in hand and pale to the lips. Miss Cosby gave him a knowing look as she extended her gloved hand.

"It was good of you," she said. "Mrs. Dunleigh seemed so much excited over what had happened that she took no notice of Buckley nor seemed to remark on the oddity of his sudden appearance at such an opportune moment. The coachman unlatched the door, the carriage and got them away, leaving George in the center of the cluster of ladies. Kitty Cosby introduced him to Mrs. Dunleigh, but that lady simply bowed and continued her nervous exclamations of horror at the catastrophe. "I thought we were being hurried into eternity!"

"In our reception parlor," laughed Kitty, who was calmness itself. "Pshaw! Mrs. Dunleigh! I know the old thing would simply drag and bump along till Harrison stopped the horses, but I do believe you and Mrs. Cranston would believe you and Mrs. Cranston would have crashed the life out of Lydia and myself."

"Well, I'm glad it was no worse," declared Mrs. Dunleigh. "Come on, you'll all catch your deaths out here in those thin dresses."

Lydia and George ascended the steps, and she passed with him a few

I can't bear any more. I—I am only a woman, George. I'm only a girl who is being pulled and dragged by others. Further begged me to permit this entertainment, I refused at first, George, on my honor I did, but father is in a critical condition. The doctor told me not to worry him on this affair tonight. The poor man loves such things with all his soul, and he thinks Governor Telfair a great man. He actually forced down and cried when I refused; it was pitiful to see his old gray head shaking with sobs over what he considered base ingratitude. Besides, Kitty was included in the invitation. She is my guest, and any natural girl would like to go to such an affair, and mamma urged it. Oh, George, do pay me. Don't don't think I'm like the rest of the world, for I'm not. I hunger for better things, higher things, but in this case I really don't know what to do."

"Then," he took a deep breath, as if trying to fortify himself against a coming blow—"then you are engaged to Telfair?"

"No! I am not, George. Don't—don't question me so closely. I am not happy. I—I—"

"But he looks upon this affair to-night as favorable to his suit. Is that not true?"

"He may, George, but I really don't know what to do."

Buckley was as pale as a corpse. He brushed his brow with a quivering hand.

"God knows I have nothing to offer you," he said in a low tone. "And it was wrong for me to thrust myself on you as I have done tonight. Your friends will laugh at me for my desperation, but I don't care. Goodbye. I shall never trouble you again."

"Oh, George, but he had turned and was walking away in the darkness. She added a groan of pain, and then went into the house. She saw her mother and Mrs. Dunleigh in the drawing room under the prismatic chandelier.

OUR NEW SERIAL STORY

UNCLE TERRY

By CHARLES CLARK MUNN

This is a pure and wholesome story of New England, provincial only in its local coloring. The theme is universal, as wide and deep as life itself. The uplifting influence of a noble young man on the life of another, the warm heart and sterling integrity of Uncle Terry, the love affairs of some very interesting young people, would make the story a fascinating one wherever the scene had been laid.

"Lissy and me sorter 'spected that Terry was the magnet."

The York Times Saturday Book Review says: "Any Sunday school superintendent will find it a highly salutary book for boys." But you must not infer from this that the story is dull. As the Rochester Herald says, "before you have gone through the first chapter of Uncle Terry you are firmly convinced that you are going to like it, and when you discover that it conceals a most interesting secret nothing short of a fire alarm would induce you to put it aside."

ment alone on the veranda. She had not spoken.

"I have simply no explanation to make," he said, crying her contritely. "Explanation," she said. "Why should there be one?"

"As soon as their excitement is over," he reminded her, "they will wonder how I happened to be up here in the grounds at this time of night."

"Oh!" She raised her eyes to his in a startled expression.

"But you may know," he went on—"you may know that it was simply because I was dying to catch a glimpse of you. I was half-crazed with desperation over it all—this affair in your honor given by that man—the reason over the whole state that you are to become his wife. I did not come to Atlanta for this. I came on business. I finished my work at midnight and ought to have gone back home, but my misery chained me here. I won't keep back anything. I passed here earlier in the evening and noticed the carriage waiting for you. I saw that I could hide behind that hedge and see you come out. I did it and drank in your beauty and my deeper despair. Then I came back a few minutes ago and hid again to see you once more. Somehow I felt that my agony would be less keen if I could merely see you last—do you understand?—see you utter the line I told you good night last night in all his glory. I saw the wheel coming off. I knew what was going to happen. I could have remained hidden and allowed the coachman to let you out and thus have escaped this humiliation in the eyes of your friends. But what does it matter? They know who I am. They know why I had to act like a thief to steal a glimpse of the woman who has enslaved me with her line told you good night last night in all his glory. COMING CONVENTION

Of the Connellsville Firemen Will Bring Big Crowd to Town.

MESSAGE OF THE BURGESS.

Calling on the Citizens to Put Forth Their Best Efforts to Make the Gathering in the Coke Region Metropolis a Success.

It is my duty to inform the people of Connellsville that on August 9, 10, 11 and 12 there will assemble in our city the Western Pennsylvania Firemen's Association composed of representative firemen from all the cities and towns of the whole of Western Pennsylvania and upward of 5,000 firemen and many independent firemen's organizations from points in New York State and as far east as Massachusetts, who will make the trip to Connellsville as their summer outing which is a yearly vacation fixture for them. The Western Pennsylvania Association selects a different city each year in which to assemble and the towns have always been handsomely decorated and every city they have visited has extended a welcome and the hospitality of the town to them. Our own firemen are doing all in their power to make it a success and have engaged a well known firm of decorators to decorate the streets and erect substantial and large white columns in prominent parts of our city, and would request each and every person to in some way decorate their buildings in a style suitable for that occasion and show the visitors that our city is as good, if not a better city than others they have visited. I also understand that the decorators engaged by our firemen will bring a quantity of goods to decorate private buildings with, which decorations they will rent. Now let us get together and put our best foot forward and extend a hearty welcome. C. W. PATTERSON, Burgess.

BIG CROWD AT CARNIVAL.

Ferrari Bros. Show to Thousands at Park Last Night.

The carnival at Marietta & Stillwagon park last night was attended by between 4,000 and 5,000 people. All of the shows were crowded up to 11 o'clock. The high dive of Speedy kept all of them till the last. Esau, the snake eater, had his booth packed all evening. The very horror of his exhibition appeared to fascinate and draw crowds. Fully half of them are women. The streets of Cairo also draw well.

Princess Pauline and Steve Lawrence in their lion taming acts are star features of the whole show. Princess Pauline's entrance into the cage of a black African lion whose temper is violently uncertain commands great admiration. This lion is as savage as the day he came out of the jungle in Africa and many persons have expressed the opinion that it is but a matter of time until the woman who now daily enters his cage will fall a victim to him.

Mamie was as popular as ever last night, and the big merry-go-round and Ferris wheel got their full share of patronage. The greatest crowds are expected tomorrow and Saturday evenings. In the afternoon large crowds are in attendance. This afternoon the baby show is from 3.30 to 4.30.

WASHINGTON TOURISTS.

Driving Across Country Taking in Fayette's Mountains.

A party of Washington, Pa. tourists spent last night in Connellsville. They were John L. Stewart, manager and editor of the Washington Observer and Reporter, and Mrs. Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Dougan and Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Hines. On Tuesday they drove from Washington to Brownsville, Wednesday they came to Connellsville. Today they drove to Normalville and will cross over the mountains and go back by the way of Uniontown.

Mr. Stewart is a Fayette county boy and has been successful in Journalism. He spent his boyhood at Dunbar, and while attending Washington and Jefferson College began work on the Observer for Congressman E. F. Acheson. His rise has been rapid and conspicuous for the success of his venture.

IN POLICE COURT.

Four Arrests Made Last Night on the Street Cars.

Officer Detemple, Dispatcher Vincent Barry and Street Car Policeman Pratt hauled in a few law breakers last night. P. M. Ritchey was charged with using profane language on a street car, and was fined $5. He forked up. Jennie Diggs of Dunbar was given five days for fighting and being disorderly. Jacob Thompson of Wheeler was up for being disorderly and profane, but was released. J. D. Diggs of Dunbar was also let off. Officer Rohland anchored onto Robert Heffley, an out-of-town visitor, for being drunk and disorderly, and the offender will occupy the lockup for five days to come. Howard Green of McKeesport and Charles Turner of this town were sentenced five days for fighting.

ED. EMERY PROMOTED.

Goes to Pittsburgh As Ticket Seller at Water Street Station.

Ed. Emery, for nearly two years clerk for H. L. Dougherty, agent for the Baltimore & Ohio railroad at Connellsville, left today for Pittsburgh, where he assumed new duties. He has been appointed ticket seller at the B. & O.'s water street station for Agent S. J. Hutchinson.

The promotion is worthily bestowed. In the Connellsville office Mr. Emery proved very efficient. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. James Emery of Green street.

SCOTTDALÉ.

Breezy Paragraphs Picked Up in the Mill Town.

Scottdale, July 27.—Miss Sara M. Sherrick, a teacher in Otterbein University, Westerville, O., came Tuesday and will spend some time here visiting the families of her sister and brother, Mrs. E. M. Stauffer and D. L. Sherrick.

Prof. Orton Lowe is spending several days this week at Confluence on a fishing trip.

The W. C. T. U. will hold a mother's meeting and reception for the Little Temperance Light Bearers at the home of Mrs. C. A. Colborn tomorrow afternoon, beginning at 3 o'clock. A special program will be carried out and refreshments will be served and a pleasant time is anticipated by those who shall be in attendance.

Mrs. L. H. Leitzell is spending several weeks at Roanoke, Va., visiting her husband, Dr. L. H. Leitzell, secretary of the Iron Company of America at Roanoke.

Miss Edith Kulp of Lancaster, Pa., who had been spending last week here visiting her relatives, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Ely, returned to her home on Saturday.

Miss Sophia Pickard is the guest of Brownsville friends this week.

Miss Charles Painter returned Friday from a three weeks' visit with friends at Philadelphia.

An outing picnic of the business men of Everson will be held on August 7 as a return compliment of the Tyro Club. The committee of arrangements are John Tipping, W. H. Mackey, J. P. Boyle and John Pisula. They are requested to confer with the street railway company for ground along their railway for picnic purposes.

A brass band of the Seils & Evans show came down to Scottdale from Mt. Pleasant on the street car Monday evening, advertising the show.

Prof. Fox's dancing classes expect to give a Japanese party at the new Auditorium in Ellsworth park on Friday evening, August 3. Special Japanese souvenirs will be given and a full orchestra with drums, taps, etc., will furnish music for the occasion.

The Y. W. C. T. U. held a meeting at the home of Mrs. C. A. Colborn, Loucks avenue, on Monday evening. After the usual business session was held the evening was devoted to having a social time and refreshments were served. The next meeting will be held on Monday evening, August 8, at the home of Miss Josie P. Jones, North Broadway, and officers for the ensuing year will be elected at this meeting.

Rev. Aaron Loucks, president of the Iron Company of America, and J. W. Grantham, one of the directors, left yesterday for Roanoke, Va., on business connected with the mill, which is located at that place. The regular monthly meeting of the directors will be held here on Monday evening next.

Mr. and Mrs. George Trimble of Canton, O., are spending several weeks here visiting the latter's father, John Booker, and other relatives. Arthur G. Trimble of Pittsburg is here this week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Murray Trimble, of Bridge street. Arthur has been on the sick list for several weeks.

SHALLENBERGER WILL.

That of Late Vanderbilt Woman Admitted to Probate.

The will of Agnes Shallenberger, late of Vanderbilt, was admitted to probate Wednesday. All the estate, both real and personal, is left to the husband during his lifetime, and at his death is to be sold by the two sons, Norton L. and Hugh D. Shallenberger, the executors to the best advantage and deeds of conveyance given. The executors are also to receive from the first payment $50 to be held in trust for Edith Pauline Lynn and George M. Lynn, children of the deceased daughter, Nora B. Lynn. Should one die before reaching majority, that share is to go to the other. Should both die before coming of age, the bequest is to revert to the estate.

The daughter, Agnes R. Barnhart, is to be paid $50 out of the first payment on the estate. All the rest is to go to the children. Norton L. Shallenberger, C. E. Shallenberger, Nora L. Shallenberger and Elvey Edna Bales. The will is dated June 19, 1900, and is witnessed by John M. Core and Belle G. Stahl.

A NEW INDUSTRY.

Belington Board of Trade May Get Steel Mill.

Belington, W. Va., July 27.—Jerome Stewart of Buckhannon, W. Va., and S. M. Neace of Pittsburg, Pa., are here in conference with several members of the Board of Trade concerning the location of a steel plate mill here. They promise to build a plant which will employ 200 men. Other members of the company will be here during the coming week, when a definite proposition will be made to the Board of Trade. The citizens of the town are disposed to be liberal in granting concessions of land and subsiding to the stock, and are enthusiastic over the prospect.

RIVER COAL SOLD.

New Cumberland Company Buys Over 800 Acres Below Wellsburg.

Wellsburg, W. Va., July 27.—The LaBelle Coal Company of New Cumberland has purchased the holdings of the Wells Coal Company, below Wellsburg, consisting of 820 acres of the No. 8 vein of coal. The price paid was $18,000. The LaBelle company also bought a few weeks since the Walsh coal lands, 625 acres, just below Wellsburg. They will operate both these properties with improved mining machinery. The price paid for the Walsh coal lands was $50,000. These coal lands front on the Ohio river.

Guardian Given Appropriation. Daniel Sturgeon, guardian of Guy II. and other children of John Muldon of this county, was granted the privilege of appropriating a certain amount of the estate for the purpose of maintenance and education of the different minors, also for the purpose of making certain needed repairs to the property.
